So Valentines Day is coming up, you excited?
I dunno, something tells me that love won't be in the air...
Sorry Cupid, you're going to have to skip Goshen College, shooting arrows is a form of violence, GC is a pacifist school.
I could always teach them my magic love dance.
Yea, that won't work either, they're Mennonite.

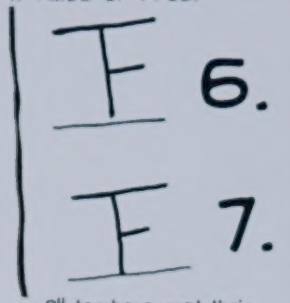
How to ace your finals without studying

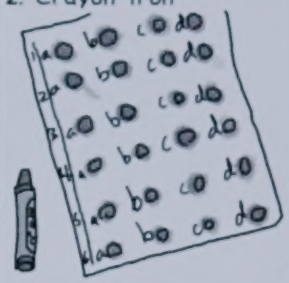
Michael Neumann

1. False or True?



All teachers want their students to succeed. So instead of putting either 'T' or 'F' – just put both and let the teacher see the letter that they want to see.

2. Crayon-tron

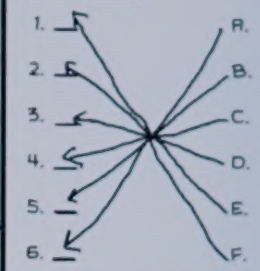


Ever wonder why you have to use a No. 2 pencil on scantron tests? Maybe because it always reads crayon as the correct answer. How else do you think I got a 42 on my ACT and 3,012 on the SAT?

3. 1st place = winner

This just goes back to the basics. The first person to finish their final is an automatic A++. Being confident and speedy is much more impressive than actually being smart.

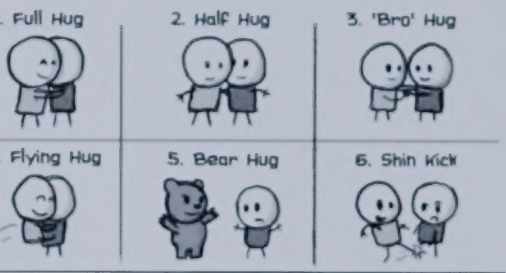
4. Matching



Don't put the letter on the line, instead, draw a bunch of lines that all cross at a single point so you can't really tell where they go. The teacher will likely assume you're right.

The Official Hug Guide

What we have here is called a "huggable situation." The chart to the right shows the different ways you can hug someone.



1. The most common hug, this is a good way to express your friendship.
2. This hug is used mostly when you 'kind of' know someone or are in a very narrow hallway. A good way to say "I like half of you."
3. This is a good way to establish your relationship with another 'Bro,' use when a Full Hug simply is not cool enough.
4. While very expressive, this hug should only be used when you haven't seen the other person in a very long time or if you're a monkey.
5. This hug is very dangerous. Only attempt if you're a trained professional.
6. A common misconception. This is not actually a hug. Avoid using this method at all costs because it is usually quite painful for the other person.

If there is one thing I'm certain of, it's that someday robots, aliens, or zombies (or maybe all of them) will take over the human race (trust me, I know a lot about this stuff). However, thanks to the infinite power of hugs, we can stop these misunderstood beings from taking over – if we act now.

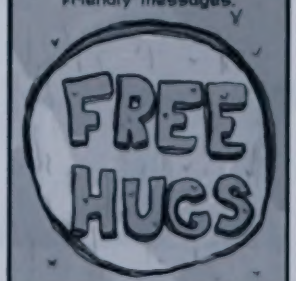
1. Robots

Robots won't try to take over the world if we become their friends early on.

When was the last time you hugged your toaster?

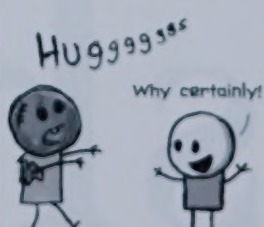
2. Aliens

Aliens are going to destroy the human race unless they think we're genuine people. Since their opinion of us is based purely on crop circles, we need to send them friendly messages.



3. Zombies

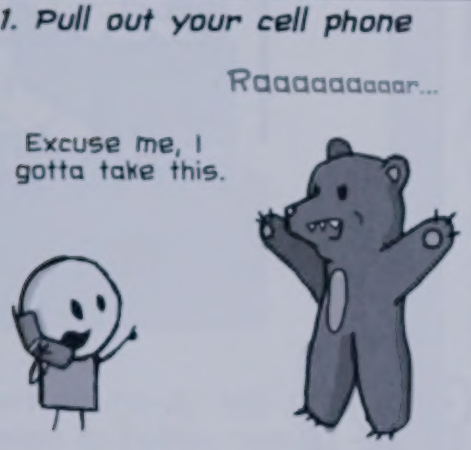
We all know that zombies crave brains. What most people don't know, is that they crave hugs even more. That's why they walk slowly towards you with their arms open wide.



What to do if you encounter a bear

I feel like there are a lot of theories out there on the issue, but never before has there been official documentation on it. Until now!

1. Pull out your cell phone

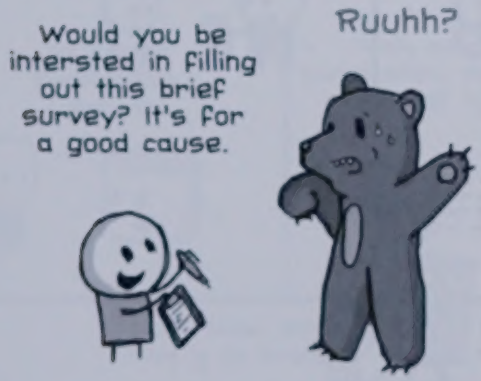


This will quickly make the bear feel less significant. The bear will also think ripping your face apart to be rather inconsiderate, especially if you are trying to have a meaningful conversation.

2. Put your clothes on backwards

Bears will have a very hard time attacking you if they can't tell which direction you are actually facing. The bear will eventually leave the area and ponder what just happened. In extreme cases, the bear will even die of confusion.

3. Whip out a survey



No being on this planet wants to fill out a survey. Bears will quickly try to leave the area to avoid further confrontation. Tell them it's for a good cause and they'll even feel bad doing so. They will also be quickly embarrassed when they realize they don't know how to use a pen.

4. The Fetus Position

This is commonly mistaken for 'the fetal position.' Try that position on an alpha male during mating seasons and you'll see why it's a bad idea. Once the bear sees this stage of prenatal development it will quickly wander off.

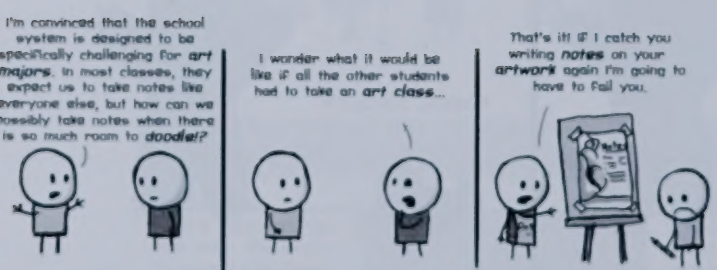
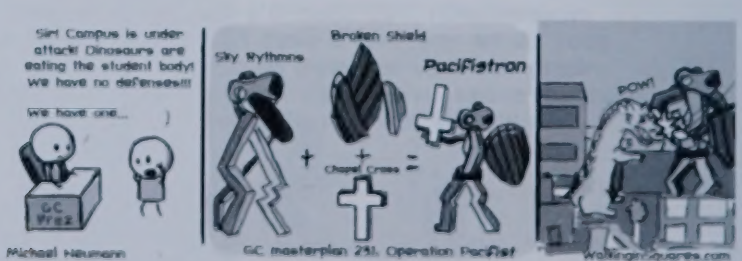
I'm trying to figure out who this person is. I mean, I recognize him, but I just can't put a name on it.
Here, let me look.
Oh, I know who it is! It's me!

Doctor, the invisible man is here to see you now.
Tell him I can't see him.



I'm convinced that the school system is designed to be specifically challenging for art majors. In most classes, they expect us to take notes like everyone else, but how can we possibly take notes when there is so much room to doodle!?
I wonder what it would be like if all the other students had to take an art class...
That's it! If I catch you writing notes on your artwork again I'm going to have to fail you.



Sir! Campus is under attack! Dinosaurs are eating the student body! We have no defenses!!!

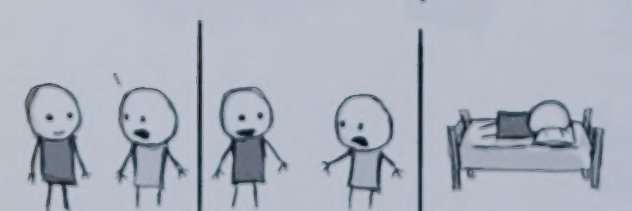
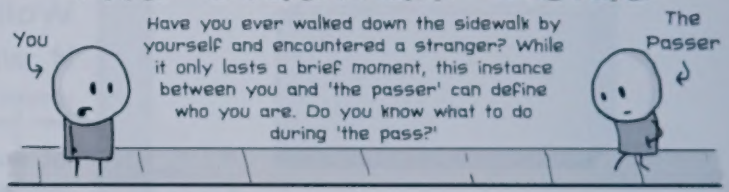
I dunno, something tells me that love won't be in the air...
Sorry Cupid, you're going to have to skip Goshen College, shooting arrows is a form of violence, GC is a pacifist school.
I could always teach them my magic love dance.
Yea, that won't work either, they're Mennonite.

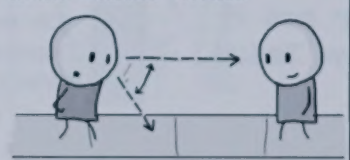


The Sidewalk Guide



You
Have you ever walked down the sidewalk by yourself and encountered a stranger? While it only lasts a brief moment, this instance between you and 'the passer' can define who you are. Do you know what to do during 'the pass?'
The Passer

1.The Glance Attack

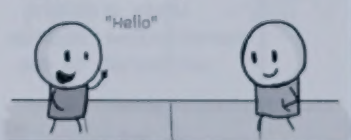


Invented by people lacking self-confidence, the glance attack is a process of starring at the ground right in front of you and quickly glancing at the passer in rapid succession. This approach is not ideal in most cases as it comes natural to awkward people.

2.The Intimidator

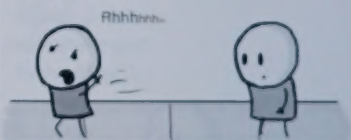
As you approach the passer, raise your hands over your head and extrude your chest in a threatening manner. If the passer looks at you, say something such as "What?" or "Uhhh, what it is!" Execute this move while passing to make sure the passer has no time to respond.

3.The Friendly



Being kind to a stranger is very difficult, so this move takes years of practice. Right before the pass attempt to either smile or say "Hello." If you're really crazy even try to wave while you're doing it. In extreme cases the passer will mimic your action and temporarily feel happy.

4.Retreat

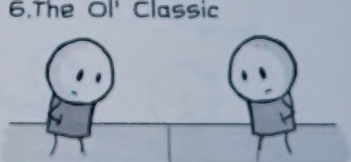


Let's face it, some of us simply are not ready for the pass. In such cases retreat is the only option. Quickly turn around, flail your arms, yelp, and run away. In most cases you'll escape the situation easily, but if for some reason the passer chases after you, you're pretty much screwed.

5.The Cartwheel

A great way to spice up your morning stroll, doing a cartwheel during the pass will never fail to surprise the passer and boost your street credit. If possible, continue down the sidewalk as if nothing ever happened. Eventually you might even get a cool nickname such as "The Cartwheeler." Nice.

6.The Ol' Classic



Sometimes you have to stick with what works - doing absolutely nothing. Instead of having a 3 second interaction with a stranger, why not spend that time looking at the cracks in the sidewalk? They are pretty interesting. While this move is perfectly safe, practicing it for too long can result in loneliness.

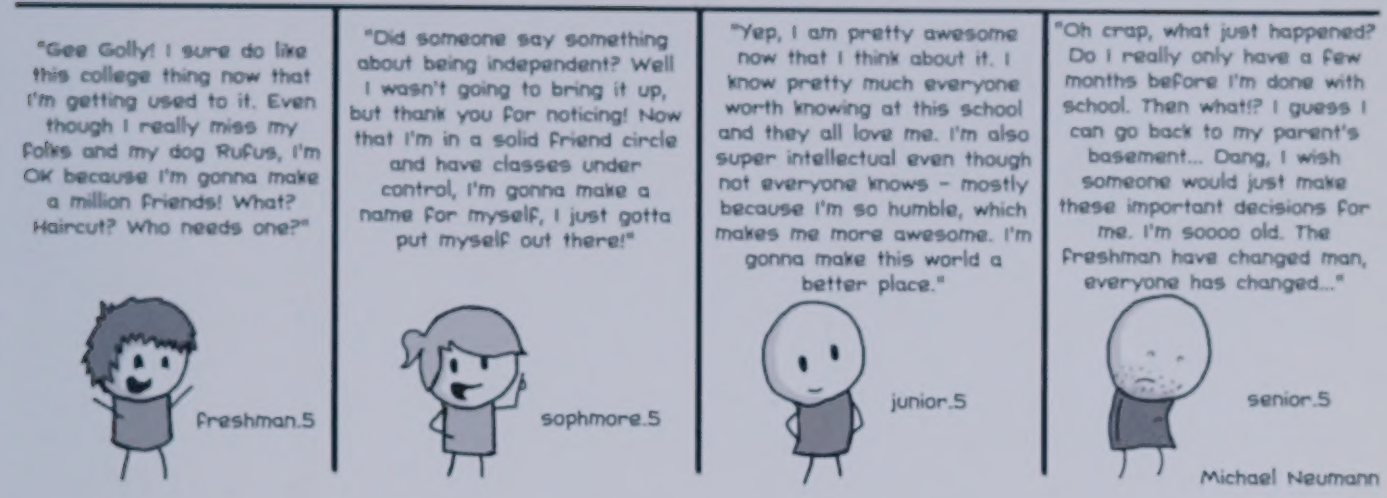
Becoming a '.5'

Now that a new semster has just started, we are all now officially a '.5' of some sort.

walkinginsquares.com



"Gee Golly! I sure do like this college thing now that I'm getting used to it. Even though I really miss my folks and my dog Rufus, I'm OK because I'm gonna make a million friends! What? Haircut? Who needs one?"
freshman.5
"Did someone say something about being independent? Well I wasn't going to bring it up, but thank you for noticing! Now that I'm in a solid friend circle and have classes under control, I'm gonna make a name for myself, I just gotta put myself out there!"
sophmore.5
"Yep, I am pretty awesome now that I think about it. I know pretty much everyone worth knowing at this school and they all love me. I'm also super intellectual even though not everyone knows - mostly because I'm so humble, which makes me more awesome. I'm gonna make this world a better place."
junior.5
"Oh crap, what just happened? Do I really only have a few months before I'm done with school. Then what!? I guess I can go back to my parent's basement... Dang, I wish someone would just make these important decisions for me. I'm soooo old. The freshman have changed man, everyone has changed..."

2008-2009 yearbook staff

emily e. shantz, editor-in-chief/big cheese
anita opel, assistant (to the) editor
brandon long, chief photographer
gwen penner, faculty advisor

photo credits

i want to say a huge thank you to everybody who even remotely helped me complete this thing. first of all, anita and brandon--you two were amazing. i seriously would have gone nuts were it not for you two. oh, and my arms would have fallen off from trying to carry all the boxes full of yearbooks. thanks to gwen penner and also to my mother for trying to keep me on task...it worked, sort of. thanks to all of you who contributed photographs. without your talent, there would be no book. or at least, there wouldn't be much of one—mostly blank pages, really. especially thanks to chase and all the record photographers, and thanks also to dad for letting me hog the rebel the whole year. and let me think. a big thanks to all the business owners who supported us financially this year. crazy stuff is happening in elkhart county, and you didn't have to donate to our humble picture-book, but something in you decided to anyway. thanks to myrna for editing this, because even i make mistakes...loads of 'em. and thanks in advance to whoever is helping me finish this. i'm in colorado, baby!
